Para. 183. Stangenhilber MOON was not a serious intelligence officer, but exploited the German Maledienst for his own amusement and profit. He regarded his privileged position in the GS as a means of further enriching himself. SCHLIMMER took pleasure in protecting him against investigations. He had his own contacts and sources in Switzerland, the most important of which was the department SAINTO, but he did not produce reports of any value. X

Page 3. Witness HOEN. According to NEUSSER this man was SCHILLERHOFF's link with Col. KASSEN of the Salon I-8. NEUSSER met HOEN on one occasion in April 26, 1943, at St. Margarethen. At that time HOEN told him that he was employed in arranging the transfer of high personages such as Patsin through Switzerland.

Para 48. According to SUHLIKHNER, SARAI was an seriously specially picked intelligence officer working with ANTHIA. He was in contact with BOHKE. The latter worked with SARAI on an economic basis. As far as SUHLIKHNER remembers, he founded a firm for which the Japanese had to find the money. Apart from the testimony to get thereby his financial position in order (BOHKE had, in some, lost a great deal of money in Hungary and France), he achieved good relations based on confidence with SARAI. This man must have had contacts with the Russians or must have known ways to approach them.... BOHKE always pretended that the Japanese, therefore mainly SARAI and ANTHIA, wanted to win over SUHLIKHNER for cooperation with the Russians.
